Snow Weekend Proceeds With Game, Dance Tonight

Snow Weekend officiaiiy started on Thursday evening with a concert given by the Wartburg College Concert Band, under the direction of Dr. Robert E. Lee.

Music ranged from Tellemen to Gershwin, including an appearance by a dixieland combo comprised of faculty members, Dr. James Fritschel, K. D. Briner, Dr. Robert Lee and other citizens of Waverly. The program also included solos by Frankiin E. Williams, fiutist, and Art Ait, percussionist.

Highiight of the evening was the crowning of the King and Queen of Snow Weekend, juniors Ciiff Corneiius and Trish Unkrich.

Friday's activities began with the Wartburg-Upper iowa basketball game. Following the game, a night club setup was held in Clinton Lounge. Entertainment was provided by semi - professional groups from neighboring schools and several campus groups.

Snow sculpture judging was scheduled for this morning, Saturday. The Kiondike Races were also to take place then, with prizes of $10 for first place and $5 for second place for both men's and women's divisions.

Tonight will be the Wartburg-Luther basketball game, with the after-game dance starting at 9:30 p.m. in the Knights Gymnasium. Music will be provided by the "Nite Fiite."

The weekend wiii come to a close on Sunday night with a double - feature movie, "The Hill" and "The Art of Love." The movie starts at 7:30.

Dean Earnest F. Oppermann bestows the honor of Snow Weekend Queen on Patricia Unkrich as Snow Weekend King, Clifford Cornelius, looks on. The coronation took place at a concert given Thursday, Feb. 1, by the Wartburg College Concert Band. The concert officially began the annual festive weekend.

Dress Code Remains Topic

Campus dress code was again the main topic of interest discussed at the student senate meeting last Tuesday night.

A bill recommending the aboiishment of a dress code on campus was defeated by a vote of 10-9. Those voting against the measure were wary of possible conflicts which they said may have arisen when special affairs would be held on campus.

In many instances it is usually taken for granted that students wiii dress accordingiy, the senators said, but some remarked the resoiution could have a bearing on such a situation.

Senate action on the matter wiii be carried over into the next meeting.

Other Senate business oi particular significance was a bill passed unanimously which asks the faculty to rescind its ruling on closing of the iibrary and the Den during Venite services.

Strange Man Seen Posing As Custodial Staff Member

By STEVE SCHLARMANN

Recently a man has been seen on the Wartburg campus and in several buildings posing as a member of the custodial staff.

According to Dr. Nancy Mista of the Physical Education Department, a man entered her office in the Knights Gymnasium and said he was a "member of the custodial staff."

She described him as between 5'7" and 5'8" in height, having a key chain, wearing a grey coat and having a generally shabby appearance.

Asks For Directions

He asked directions to the furnace room and left. Since she had not seen him before, Miss Mista checked to see if any new men had been added to the staff. There had been no such additions.

Janitor Howard Noei said he was working in the furnace room when a man opened the door and iooked in. Noel remembers him saying, "I must have the wrong building" and then leaving.

On Thursday, Jan. 18, Miss Eiien Haars of the Biology Department saw a man coming out of her office in the Becker Hall of Science. She described him as around 50 years of age, "dirty looking," having beard stubble on his face and wearing a gray topcoat.

Haars Comments

Miss Haars commented that when she approached her office door, the man saln, "I almost iocked you out." She thus thought he was a member of the Science Hall maintenance staff.

She said that she checked her office, nevertheless, and discovered that her billfoid was missing. By this time, however, the stranger was gone.

Dean Earnest F. Oppermann's comment on the stiuation was that there is still no real proof that this person took anything. He did verify that this stranger had been seen in Luther Hali, the Science Hall, Knights Gymnasium and Clinton Hali.

Convention Work Beginning

Work has started on Wartburg's "biggest event of the year," the annual Wartburg College Nominating Convention, according to elections chairman, Jim Cockefair.

He outlined the purposes of the convention as follows: to nominate candidates for student body president, to create greater student involvement and to create a greater awareness of campaign issues.

Since the Wartburg convention ciosely foiiows the styie of national conventions, it is said by Cockefair to be a good learning experience.

As many as 300 to 325 peopie wiii be involved. The ratio of one deiegate to every four students will be continued, and one alternate for every ten wiii be chosen. Deiegations and respective chairmen will be assigned according to housing units.

Speakers for the past conventions have been iowa Senator Jack Miiier and iowa Representative John Culver. Invitations are extended to various poiitical dignitaries, such as Senator Robert Kennedy, Senator Burke Hickenlooper, and former President Dwight Eisenhower.

According to Cockefair, 13 committees are already working on this year's convention.

Visitor Interviews Prospects

The Rev. Charles Schmitz of the A. L. C. Evangeiism Department visited Wartburg on iast Wednesday, to interview students interested in Parish Mission Building work this summer.

Interested students met with Pastor Schmitz in the Auxiliary Conference Room at 10 a.m. in Buhr Lounge from 11 a.m. - 12 noon and 1-3 p.m.

Parish Mission Buiiders is a program of coiiege students who serve Lutheran congregations in the United States and Canada. it begins with 10 weeks of training, including Bibie study and briefings, on-the-field survey and visitation caiis. Then the group is divided into teams of four and flown to respective assignments.

Each team serves three different parishes for three weeks each. Work is done mainly with the existing evangelism programs and youth programs.

All travei expenses are paid by the Evangeiism Department of the A. L. C. Room and board are provided by local congregations.

Dorms Sponsor Open Houses

Six dorms are holding open house as part of the Snow Weekend festivities.

Hebron, Centennial, Voiimer and Wartburg Halls wiii be on dispiay Sunday, Feb. 4, from 1-3 p.m.

North Hali, open today from 1-5 p.m., wiii be open at the same time Sunday.

Ciinton Hail's open house was held today from 1-4 p.m.

Wartburg Week Is 'Successful'

The Wartburg Week held in Denver, Colo., Jan. 25-27 was a great success from the standpoint of the number of people who attended the meeting, showing interest in the college, according to Al Disrud, director of community relations.

More than 120 attended tne dinner-meeting Saturday night, heid at the Capri Motel in northern Denver. This meeting brought the largest turnout of alumni of any meeting held in that area, according to Robert Gremmeis, alumni director.

In addition, three application bianks have been signed and a number of others are anticipated.

During the dinner - meeting Pres. John Bachman spoke about the growth of the coiiege and iiiustrated his talk with colored slides of the faculty, students and the campus.

Following the meeting, group discussions were held of alumni, students and their parents and the pastors of the region. Gremmeis and Orville Mc Elfresh, former adminissions counselor, met with the alumni.

Victor Pinke met with prospective students and their parents pius high school counselors, and President Bachman and Disrud met with the alumni and Castle Club.

The Rev. Harold Becker, director of church relations, was in Colorado the entire time assisting in arranging the meetings and contacting individuals.

Selection Team To Visit Feb. 5

United States Marine Corps Officer Seiection Team wiii be available in the Student Union on Feb. 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., according to Captain Bruce Tester, Officer Selection Officer from Des Moines.

The Marine Corps has officer programs avaliable for freshmen through seniors. Aii iead to a Second Lieutenant's commission upon graduation. While attending coiiege the student attends no meetings or drills, is draft deferred and has ultimate financial benefits.

Venite To Host Guest Preacher

Each semester the committee in charge of scheduling the Venite services tries to include what they recognize as one of the great preachers of today.

The guest preacher they have invited for this term is the Rev. William Hillegonds, chaplain at Hope College in Holland, Mich. A college of the Christian Reform Church, Hope College is a sister to Central College in Pella.

Rev. Hillegonds will conduct the Venite service on Thursday, Feb. 8, at 10:05 a.m.

Grossmann Men Pay Fines

Fines totalling over $120 for the year have been levied in Grossmann Hali by proctors and dorm president John Sorenson. Fines include four $15 fines for drinking and a $5 fine for possession of beer.

Many of the fines given out are for noise, some being for second offense. Inciuded in the total are two disorderly conduct charges for one third floor resident chasing another down the stairs.

Second floor has $4 of the total with four noise fines. The rest of the $120 has been handed out to residents of third floor.

Sorensen said that "idealistically, we shouldn't have to have a fine system. However, with the maturity of some of the individuals we have, we'll have to keep it."

Sorensen has levied most of the fines concerned with drinking. He said he wishes there was a better or different solution to the problem but said he will fully enforce the rules as they now stand.

The ieading fine payer, having been assessed with $26 worth of fines, said that most of the fines he "had coming."

However, on his latest fine of disorderly conduct, previously mentioned, he said, "I don't feel that a disorderly conduct fine was justified. We were just making noise. The fine was given to me by a second floor proctor before the 7:30 quiet hours went into effect."

Another third floor resident replied that he thought that the third floor was being singled out and that "just as many guys drink on the other floors as they do here."

Regents Meeting Here Next Week

Wartburg College Board of Regents will meet on campus next Tuesday through noon Wednesday.

They will be dealing partiy with the Presidential Advisory Committee on iong-range poiicy in addition to other matters.

John Graflin, a new member of the Board, wiii be attending his first Wartburg Regents meeting. He is vice president of the John Deere Co. in Moline, Ill.

Dress Code Is Unenforceable

The ridiculousness of an enforced dress code was clearly illustrated last Wednesday evening in the cafeteria. After being informed that the cafeteria would be having a dress-up night, a great number of the students did dress appropriately and as was dictated to them. Others made a foolish mockery of the occasion, proving to themselves and to others in the cafeteria that a dress code is virtually unenforceable.

It was clearly shown at this evening meal that any individual can fulfill the requirements of a dress code and still pride himself that he looks like an absolute slob. Clashing colors, work shoes, coats which are too small or too large, frayed blue jeans with a sport coat all can contribute to fulfilling the requirements of a dress code.

Who Is Judge?

And what administrative official on campus should judge whether a student actually feels dressed up this way or is making a mockery of the dress code with the slight eccentricities of dress? What gods that be on this campus should judge what is apropos and stylish and what cannot be accepted at a cafeteria dress-up night?

The administration has said that the college is trying to expose the students of Wartburg College to the norms of the outside world. This thesis, of course, insinuates that the student body is terribly naive in regard to formal attire and to such social functions as dining out.

This is an interesting dogma, the Trumpet believes, but it is nevertheless, highly inaccurate. The student body at Wartburg is far more capable in realizing the social dictates of a cosmopolitan social atmosphere than the administration seems to believe.

The Trumpet does not dispute the fact that the Wednesday evening dress-up night was pleasant and perhaps somewhat refreshing. That is, of course, if one disregards the Gestapo tactics of the administrative official who diligently watched the doors to see that no one entered.

The Trumpet has faith in the student body as a whole that it will dress appropriately for normal social functions at college and is aware of socially acceptable dress for all occasions. The Trumpet also believes that if given a freedom of will and relief from bouncer tactics, the student body of Wartburg College would surprise the administration by dressing appropriately for social and academic functions.

Where certain members of the administration are most naive, however, is in the belief that a dress code can be enforced.

Women Want Husbands

Because 98.6 percent (Trumpet estimate) of the women on this campus want to catch a husband by the end of their four years at Wartburg, and at least a great share of the men on this campus desire to impress the women in a mature manner, very few people are going to be caught in public with their hair in curlers or with their acne cream on or with their Capri pants out of press.

As for those who will not or cannot dress appropriately for the more formal occasions on campus, the Trumpet believes that it would be best to let them be, for in actuality there is nothing anyone can do about their mode of dress. You can make a guy wear a coat and tie, but you can't make him dress up.

Congress Passes Law That Eliminates 'Society'

To the Editor:

During this past month of January, our United States Congress passed a law which not only has eliminated the last remnants of the "Great Society," but has marked the inception of the Dark Ages in this country.

The Public Welfare System is already designed to cheat an individual of his basic human rights, and to infamy, poverty has now relegated its bearers to half citizenships.

Mothers are now forced to leave their homes and children and made to work at a time when children most need the love, guidance and affection that only a mother can provide. Children must now wait in lines in order to receive aid.

In effect, our leaders are now telling needy children that there not only is no room in the inn, but also, please don't starve to death on my doorstep--it's bad for my image.

I believe that the time is long past due for us to re-examine our archaic, Old Testament views on poverty. In spite of the story of Job, poverty is not a punishment from a just God, but rather, an inescapable hell, built by the self-righteous, bluenoses of our society.

Senator Percy of Illinois showed unusual insight when he said that when we spend $30 billion on 16 million Vietnamese and only $10 billion on 30 million poor Americans, I think we have our priorities mixed up.

I only add that not only are our priorities mixed up, but so are our traditional Christian values if they continue to dehumanize our poor. Poverty is, without doubt, no blessing, but it need not remain a Christian curse.

I remain:

Reader Explains Reasons For Leaving Open Meeting

To the Editor:

The Trumpet of Jan. 27 contained an unsigned report of an "open discussion" held by PAX! and the Student Action Commission on the previous Monday evening.

My leaving of that meeting was explained by the writer's conjectures in terms of finding "no one to help support (my) views."

This was not the reason. I had arrived with two expectations:

First, that PAX! sponsorship would mean that a majority of those attending would be members of PAX! and that Student Action sponsorship would result in at least some people of my conviction being present.

This situation indeed occurred, as the latter witnessed an exchange of ignorance and mutual affirmation by the former.

Second, that I would leave when my case had been presented and my usefulness at the meeting thereby ended. That this point had been reached was made clear when the opposition answered my questions with ridicule instead of thought.

In sum, then, not only were supporters anticipated and recognized by me (and the reporter's suggestion therefore wrong), but the necessity of leaving was forced by a lack of ears rather than of voices.

Promises Essay

By PAUL NELSON

NELSON

Last week, my final line promised an essay on the role of the student which would then enable me to continue on to more clearly define the role, or a role (I don't know exactly which) for student government. Now that I start to write that essay, I realize that I have inadvertently committed myself to a series of columns which will hopefully reach some sort of logical conclusion.

Why a series? Is the role of the student and of student government so complex? Maybe not, but to understand that role, we must understand much more. What is a college and what is its purpose? What is Wartburg and its purpose?

Now, I imagine that some of you think that to start at this point is unnecessary and perhaps even trite. But, unless we do start here, our conclusion will have little meaning.

* * *

I think everyone realizes the fact that a college is a place of higher learning and that one learns more about Chaucer and calculus here than in high school (that is trite). But it is also a place that adolescents generally enter and that adults generally leave.

Something either happens or should happen in those four years. Students either grow up or don't grow up, but all leave to take a place in the world.

Wartburg College is "a college which exists to serve its students and which challenges them to grow in a meaningful way." Those are not my words but those found on the inside of the cover of the "Bulletin of Wartburg College."

To grow means to face decisions, problems, to experience pain and frustration, to see the world and realize one's place in it.

* * *

One can perhaps grow in intellect in an ivory tower, but not in maturity. To say that Wartburg's students are appreciably more religious or righteous than all others would be foolish. To try to shield its students from the world would be folly, but to try and mold them into its own conception of a model being would be worse than folly. On the same token, to not present its ideas and beliefs to offer a choice is as bad as attempting to force them.

I see that my column has taken a turn toward the general and the abstract. My apologies. Maybe it will start one or two sparks flickering.

W-Club Crowns Winter Queen

Pianist To Give Lecture-Recital

Pianist Jean Hunt, sophomore, will present a lecture-recital on Sunday, Feb. 4, at 3 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

Included in her program will be Haydn's Sonata in E-Flat Major, No. 49; Aurie's Voltes, from Petite Suite; Tailleferre's Pastorale in A-Flat; Milhaud's La Muse Menagere; Durey's Romance sans Paroles; Poulenc's Mouvements Perpetuels; and Honegger's Prelude - Arioso-Fughette.

Sponsor Dinner

Wartburg Women's Club held a semiformal dinner and dance at the Holiday Inn, Waterloo, last Saturday evening.

According to Mrs. Neal Winkler, vice-president of the group, entertainment was provided by Dr. Robert Lee, Dr. James Fritschel, both of the Wartburg Music Department, and Dr. Dale Everson, Shell Rock.

About sixty persons, including the faculty and staff members, their husbands and wives, attended the party, a first dinner dance for this group.

Juniors, Seniors Should Sign On Placement Office Board

Juniors and seniors interested in being interviewed for a job within the next week or two should either sign up on the bulletin board in the Placement Office or contact Jack Schemmel, job placement director.

Several companies and public schools have scheduled representatives to conduct interviews with college students on the Wartburg campus.

On Feb. 6, Liberty Mutual Insurance Company will be looking for graduates to be trained in the areas of underwriting, claims, sales and executive work. They have a training program in each one of these areas.

The interviewer will be Harry Miller, claims manager, who will hold 30 minute interviews from 9 to 5 p.m.

Company Has Instruction

The IBM representative, George Ribholz, will be at Wartburg Wednesday, Feb. 7, looking for marketing worker representatives. The Company has a year intensive instruction in class and actual experience in a branch office.

On Thursday, Feb. 8, Neenah, Wis., will be represented by James Fricke, associate superintendent, who will be conducting 30 minute interviews from 8:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Boulder, Colo., public schools, represented by James Fike, will hold 20 minute interviews from 9 until 4:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 9.

No further interview time is available, but if a student wishes, the Placement Office will present his credentials to the representative if the student is unable to work in time for an interview.

Interested In Teachers

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Dubuque Public Schools will be represented by Mr. Willbee, who will conduct 30 minute interviews from 9:30 to 2 p.m. They are interested in elementary and secondary teachers. Time is still available for interviews.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, represented by Stanley Pugh, supervising adviser, will interview persons for periods of 30 minutes each from 9 until 4 p.m. They are primarily interested in business administration-economics graduates.

The Bankers' Life Company of Des Moines will be on campus Wednesday, Feb. 14. Also on Wednesday, the St. Paul Public Schools will hold 30 minute interviews with Richard Hallen, director of personnel.

Numerous vacancies in the elementary, junior high and high school levels are available.

On Thursday, Feb. 15, the IPS will interview business administration-economics graduates from 9 to 4 p.m. That same day Mrs. Dale Morgan will interview senior girls and interested junior girls for the Camp Fire Girls, Inc.

Positions are available for the Field Director, Executive Director and anyone interested in any aspect of camping may wish to interview from 10 to 2 p.m.

Younkers Will Interview

Also on Thursday, Feb. 15, Younkers of Des Moines, represented by Mary L. Williamson, Personnel Director, will conduct interviews with Liberal Arts students interested in store advertisement and merchandising.

Mr. Geske of Montgomery Wards will interview students interested in marketing, merchandising and management, from 9 until 5 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 16. Interested juniors may also contact Schemmel for possible interviews.

On Feb. 16, Alvin Schumacher, personnel administrator of the Kenosha, Wis., Public Schools will conduct 20 minute interviews from 2 to 5 p.m. with students interested in elementary and secondary teaching positions.

Knights Beat UIC, 77-70; Oppose Norse Tonight

By DAVE WESTPHAL

Undefeated Wartburg successfully passed the first of its four obstacles to the Iowa Conference title and a berth in the NAIA Tournament by defeating Upper Iowa, 77-70, last night in Knights Gym.

G. E. Buenning led the Knights with 28 points, while Tom Manchester added 22 in piloting Wartburg to its 15th straight season victory.

Upper Iowa's Jon Miller led all scorers with 38 points.

Knights Stay On Top

The win kept the Knights on top of the IIAC with a 7-0 record, and pushed Upper Iowa's mark to 4-3 at the halfway point in the conference schedule.

Wartburg also maintained their 1-game margin over Luther, who now has a 6-1 loop mark after its 98-93 escape from Buena Vista last night at Storm Lake.

Wartburg's second big test comes quickly, as the Knights play host to Luther tonight at Knights Gym.

The Knights already own a victory over the Norse, that coming in the finals of the Lutheran Welfare Tournament in Park Ridge, Ill. The score of that contest was 78-64.

Luther sports three of the finest players in the league in forward Alex Rowell, guard Dave Mueller and center Frank Barth.

Rowell Leads Scoring

Rowell leads the league in scoring with a 24.5 average, and Mueller is third in points with a 21.2 scoring average. Barth is seventh in rebonding.

Knights' coach "Buzz" Levick explained that Luther has one of the best starting line-ups in the league because of Rowell, Mueller and Barth, but that they are quite weak in depth.

The merit of a strong bench was shown in the two clubs' first meeting, when several Wartburg players got into foul trouble, and Levick had to go to his bench.

The reserves were able to hold off a late Luther rally, and pull away to a 14-point victory.

Last night's contest was won at the charity line, as the Knights hit on 7 fewer field goals than Upper Iowa, but hit a phenomenal 35 of 38 free throws for 92 percent.

But Wartburg's shooting from the field was as poor as its free throw shooting was good. The Knights made only 21 of 59 shots for 35 percent, one of the poorest marks of the year.

John Hearn had one of the worst shooting nights of his career, as he hit on only 3 of 16 attempts, and finished with 11 points.

Wartburg jumped out to a narrow 13-8 lead, but at this time Upper Iowa employed a full-court press which enabled the Peacocks to take the lead for the only time in the game at 17-16.

Leads At Half, 35-26

After that, Wartburg pulled away to a 9-point lead at the half, 35-26.

After intermission it appeared that the Knights were on their way to an easy win as they extended their lead to 15 points at 50-35 after Cliff Cornelius hit on a 3-point play.

But from that point on, Upper Iowa outscored the Knights by a margin of 24 to 9 to tie the game at 59-all. Then Wartburg went back to work to score 10 of the next 11 points to ice the game at 70-60.

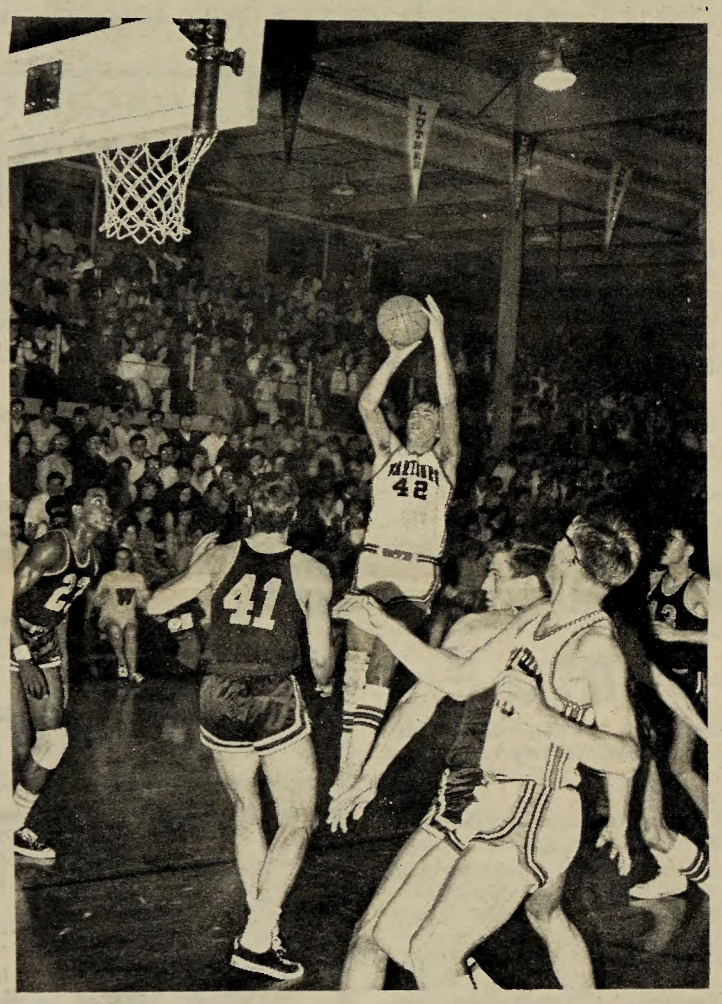
Late in the game, with Hearn, Cornelius and Buenning all in foul trouble, Levick switched to a zone defense which successfully stymied Upper Iowa's offense, and kept the Knight starters from drawing their fifth foul.

"I felt our ball-handling was the worst it has been this year," said Levick after the game. "We did not work well against the press, but part of this can be contributed to the fact that Manchester is a freshman, and was perhaps somewhat jittery."

Wartburg made 19 turnovers in the game.

Earlier this week Levick indicated that Wartburg would have to win at least three out of four of the games with Upper Iowa and Luther.

In the preliminary game last night Wartburg's freshmen defeated Upper Iowa's freshmen by a score of 87-80.



G. E. Buenning takes an uncontested jump shot in first half action of last week's Loras game. Buenning hit 16 points in Wartburg's 82-71 win over the Duhawks.

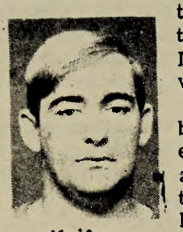
Branch -- Out On A Limb

Wrestlers Are Recognized

By JIM KEIFER

This week and next should tell the tale in the Iowa Conference basketball race. With all the basketball action it is awfully easy to forget about the wrestling team. Wrestling is not the spectator sport that basketball is, and I know I tend to forget about all the hard work that the wrestlers put in.



Keifer

Wrestling is more of an individual sport than basketball. In basketball you have four other players out on the floor to help you. In wrestling you are alone on the mat with another person who has the same thing in mind as you do. That is to beat him as fast as you can, and to try to pin him, so you can get more points for your team.

Injuries have plagued Wartburg's wrestling team this year so far. Many wrestlers have had to switch weight classes to compensate for the injuries. Usually this means to lose 8 to 10 pounds, and sometimes as much as 20 pounds. This might not sound hard, but when you are in shape to begin with, and then have to lose 10 pounds, this can get very difficult.

In order to lose this weight, it means one meal a day, and this usually consists of orange juice, lean meat and some salad. Now you may say, this still doesn't sound too bad. Try to practice for an hour and a half on an empty stomach. Now you may begin to see what the wrestlers have to go through.

But ask any wrestler if he wants to quit, and he'll say no every time. Why? Because there is a great amount of pride in knowing you are in top physical shape, and are representing your school against other schools. So, maybe wrestling isn't the spectator sport that basketball is, but in my book it's a sport which you can be proud to be a part of, and I take my hat off to all the dedicated wrestlers at Wartburg.

Squires Nip Loras; Lose To Lea, 83-53

Wartburg's freshman basketball team split another weekend of two games last Friday and Saturday nights, defeating Loras, 67-65, and losing to Lea College of Albert Lea, 83-53. These games left the Squires' season record at 7-5, with 8 games remaining.

The Loras game was close at half-time, with Wartburg down three points, 37-34. After being down as much as 9 points, the Squires took the lead when Mike Kalkbrenner's long bucket put them ahead by 1, with less than a minute remaining.

The Loras Lancers then quickly scored, but on the next play, forward Keith Lazar hit on a 3-point play to ice the game. Lazar was high man with 21, followed by Paul Bruns with 20.

Coach John Kurtt accounted for the victory by saying, "The boys really wanted to win. Desire and hustling paid off for us."

An interesting fact was that Loras out-rebounded the Squires, 60-49.

The Lea College game was just a matter of cold shooting by the Squires. They amassed a 26.1 percent, hitting on only 18 of 69 field goal attempts. Lea's guard Wilkins was high with 30 total points. Lea shot 43.2 percent, scoring on 35 of 81 attempted field goals.

Forward Keith Lazar was high for the Squires with 12, followed by center Jim Clapp, who fouled out with 10 points. Usually high scorer Paul Bruns was held to 4 points by Wilkins.

The game broke loose in the third quarter when Lea College capitalized on a 35-23 half-time lead.

Statistics through the Squires' first 9 games find them even to their opponents in all departments. Overall, the Squires have a slight advantage in percentage of field goals, 41.2 as compared to 39.7 percent for their opponents.

The frosh have out-scored their opponents, 722 to 696 for game-point averages of 80.2 and 77.3, respectively.

Individual scoring finds three players in double figures. Guard Paul Bruns leads the team scoring with 159 points for a 17.7 average; forward Keith Lazar has 119 for a 13.2 average, and center Jim Clapp is right behind with 118 total points and a 13.1 average.

Grapplers Face Tough Schedule

Wartburg's wrestling team faces a strenuous schedule next week. Today the Knights will be at the Westmar Quadrangular, Tuesday they will travel to Dubuque for a dual meet with Loras and next Saturday they will host a quadrangular.

Participating in the Westmar Quad will be Upper Iowa, Minot State (N. D.) and Wartburg. Carleton, Iowa Wesleyan and St. Olaf (Minn.) will be in Wartburg's meet.

The Knights' home meet will begin at 1 p.m., with the championships at 7:30.

Mick Ketchum, the defending 137-pound Iowa Conference runner-up, is expected to be back in the line-up after missing last week's meet at Winona State. However, Howard Hunt will still be sidelined with a skin infection.

Commenting on the loss to Winona, Coach Norm Johansen said, "I thought we wrestled pretty well, especially in the lower weights. We simply made too many mistakes in the upper weights."

Levick Sees Cagers' Win Streak As Big Incentive For Players

By LES GYLLSTROM

Last year the Wartburg cagers came from out of nowhere and surprised everyone by capturing a share of the IIAC crown, and winning a trip to Kansas City.

This year the tables are turned. Going into this weekend's action with Upper Iowa and arch-rival Luther, the Knights carry with them a perfect record and the tag as the "team to beat."

It is felt by many that Wartburg's winning streak could prove to be a hindrance as the Knights enter into this crucial series with Upper Iowa and Luther. However, Coach "Buzz" Levick has other ideas.

Win Streak Has Helped

"I can't see where this winning streak has done anything but help us," Levick said. "Our players have more incentive and are really pushing themselves."

Levick also feels that the boys are playing better because of the support the fans have been giving them.

"The boys can feel that the fans appreciate the efforts of the team," remarked Levick. "This forces them to play better because of the loyalty that is given them, and their pride in themselves."

Levick feels that by winning, an athlete develops confidence in himself and his teammates. They believe in themselves in that they can get the job done.

Boys Are Not Cocky

"Our boys are not cocky," said Levick. "Yet, they display a quiet confidence you have to have in order to do a good job."

Levick cited three games that he thought were big in the Knights' current surge. The first was at Gustavus Adolphus, which found the Knights playing against a team they were never able to defeat on the road.

"After that game we felt we were capable of playing just as well on the road," commented Levick. The Knights won the contest, 65-49.

The second was the championship game at the Welfare Tournament in Chicago against the mighty Norse from Luther.

The significance of this win was that Levick was forced to play much of his bench, due to the fact that the Knights were in foul trouble throughout the game. The Knights still managed a twelve-point gap of 79-67.

The third game was the overtime win against William Penn at Oskaloosa. The Knights have experienced difficulty in winning at William Penn in previous years, and this one provided a tremendous boost for the squad.

The situation that Wartburg does face is, of course, the fact that every team will be up and gunning for the Knights.

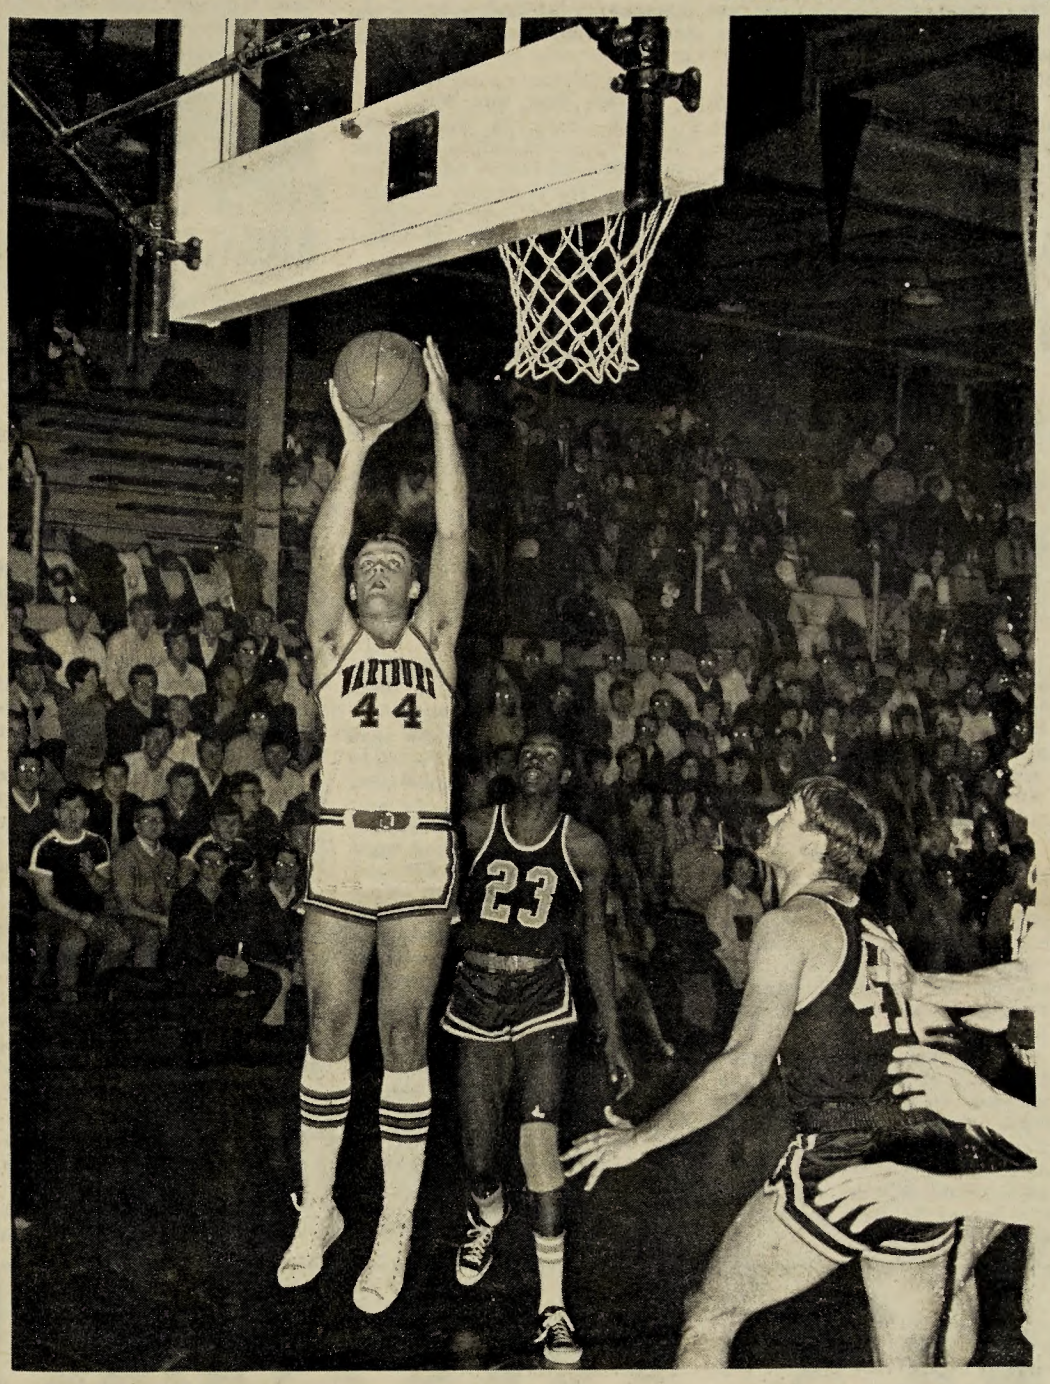
"In this case you have to prepare and work on more unusual things," explained Levick. "In other words, you have to expect the unexpected.

"A team will try to come up with something unorthodox, and we have to be ready to adjust to it," Levick went on to say.

According to Levick the team has improved a great deal on defense, and offensively they are working the ball in with good execution.

"A lot of people say that we are getting many easy lay-ups," said Levick. "But getting into position is the hard part, and we have been able to do this thus far."

As with every team the main objective is to win every game, and Wartburg hopes that the cagers can continue this objective the rest of the season.



John Hearn gets by Loras' Tom Jackson to score 2 of his 14 tallies in the Loras contest.

IM List Shows 5 Perfect Teams

Three teams are tied for the lead in the Day League of intramural basketball. Grossmann II-A won two games last week to keep them at the top of the Day League. They beat Grossmann I, 122 - 52, and then slaughtered Clinton II North, 102-43.

Phil Smoker, Denny Midthun and Bruce Branco scored 37, 22 and 32 points, respectively, in their victory over Grossmann I. Denny Midthun and Ken Kooi had 22 points against Clinton II North.

Off-campus won two, beating Grossmann Ground and Clinton II North. Daryl Suntken and Jerry Heying were the scoring leaders for the two games.

Off-campus II won their only game by defeating Clinton II South, 63-49.

In other action in the Day League Clinton II South slaughtered Grossmann I, 83 - 25. The Faculty beat Grossmann III in an overtime, 76-73. Marv Ott scored 39 points for the winners, and Bill Wittkowski tossed in 31 for the losers.

Also in the Day League Vollmer beat Clinton III North, 61-49.

Gamma Heads Knight League

Gamma is at the top of the Knight League with a perfect 4-0 record. They beat North Hall II in their only game last week. John Stueber led Gamma with 22 points.

Cotta beat North Hall 1, 60-38, to stay undefeated. Jerry Fox had a game high of 27 points for the losers.

Clinton I won two games to move into third place. They rolled over Clinton III South, 125 - 61, and then beat North Hall II, 57-51. Randy Peters had 51 points for the two games for Clinton I. Jim Hoppenworth had 30, and Wally Rick 26 in the win over Clinton III South.

Alpha-Ketha won two games by defeating Married Men, 44-31, and Clinton III South, 79-57. Hertel had 24 points for the winners and Cord 24 for the losers in the Clinton III South game.

In other action Clinton Ground South beat Clinton Ground North by a score of 77-48. Gary Nielsen and Jim Tande led the winners with 24 and 23 points.

Married Men beat Grossmann II-B, 51-35, to finish out the week's action.

IIAC Cage Race Nears Showdown

(IIAC News Service)

It's showdown time in the Iowa Conference.

IIAC basketball fans will be focusing their attention on Waverly Friday and Saturday as the first of two big weekends gets under way.

First-place Wartburg, who has yet to lose after 14 games and who is 6-0 in IIAC play, will be host to the Knights' most serious challengers. Third - place Upper Iowa, 4-2, will visit first, followed the next night by second-place Luther, 5-1.

Without a doubt, this weekend will go a long way toward deciding the outcome of this year's race.

If one of the teams should falter, however, never mind. The rematch isn't far away--in fact, it will happen in another week when Wartburg is at Upper Iowa Feb. 9 and at Luther Feb. 10.

In other conference games this weekend, Buena Vista will also be host to the Norse and Peacocks, and Dubuque and William Penn will be at Central and Simpson.

Action this past week was light as most IIAC schools were in the midst of semester tests. Only eight non-conference games were played with league schools coming out on top six times.

This runs the IIAC's record to 37-25 against non - league opponents this season.

Belk Performs Many Duties; Administrates, Teaches, Counsels

By MARTHA MOORE

Wartburg's dean of women, Miss Barbara Belk, performs a variety of duties for the college. Not only an administrator, she teaches and counsels students.

Miss Belk, originally from Detroit, Mich., completed undergraduate studies at Wayne State University in Detroit and at Capital University in Columbus, Ohio. While majoring in English and minoring in speech, she participated in debate and drama activities at these schools.

Ohio State University was the scene of her graduate work. Miss Belk earned her master's degree there in guidance and counseling.

Teaches English

Before coming to Wartburg, Miss Belk taught English and speech and counseled for four years in a public school and two years in a private Lutheran school.

"I thought I would like to try working with college-age people," she said. "I decided to inquire about possible positions, and accepted Wartburg's offer."

At Wartburg Miss Belk has taught freshman English and now teaches developmental psychology.

Duties Include

As dean of women her duties include working with the various dorm councils, the Women's Legislative Council and the Women's Judicial Council, a branch of W. L. C. which was established last year. She also works with dorm proctors.

Suggestions entertained through her work with dorm councils mainly concern changes in regulations, such as uses of the lounges and kitchenettes.

Miss Belk considers W. L. C. to be the main part of her work here.

"The major concerns which have come through W. L. C. since I came here have been the change of hours, the key system and the dress code," she commented.

Work Goes Into WJC

Much work has gone into W. J. C., a committee of seven members. The three officers are seniors. The other four members are two juniors and two sophomores, elected from the membership of W. L. C.

W. J. C. handles cases of drinking, staying out overnight without permission and key violations.

"We also handle any cases which are referred to us by head residents, dorm councils or individual students," Miss Belk added.

Wartburg's Dean of Women, Barbara Belk, performs many duties on campus. She teaches, counsels and works with WLC, WJC, dorm proctors and dorm councils.

Alumni Meeting Set For Feb. 3

Meeting of the Alumni Executive Committee will be held at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the Conference Room of Luther Hall, according to Robert Gremmels, alumni director.

The committee meets four to five times during the year to review alumni affairs.

Main purpose of this meeting will be the setting of next year's budget, according to Gremmels. He "assumes that it will be pretty much the same as last year's" (budget).

Gremmels added that the Alumni Nominating Committee will also meet Saturday.

Main purpose of that committee meeting will be to make nominations for the Alumni Board of Directors' election in May.

Wartburg Establishes New Group Counseling

This year Wartburg College has established a group counseling program for students on academic probation. The group meets once a week for approximately one hour with Quentin F. Wessman, Director of the Counseling Services.

Students on probation are invited to join the program although participation is entirely voluntary and there is no penalty for not participating. Experience has demonstrated that this kind of program can result in significant changes in the student's performance.

Last term the group, which consisted of six members, attempted to lay out the ground rules at the first meeting. The members agreed to come to the meetings, to express their feelings on their academic problems and to try to develop positive action.

Through their discussions, they hoped to determine their source of difficulty and their attitude towards education and themselves. They also wanted to provide motivation so that they could improve.

At one of the first meetings, the members of the group were tested on their study habits and attitudes. This helped to introduce a variety of discussions.

Some of the topics discussed at the meetings were the correct budgeting of time, how previous schooling affected their college grades, their attitudes toward teachers, types of tests given, their pet academic tactics, such as cramming for tests or cutting classes, different facets of dorm life and the 4-4-1 program.

Wessman hopes to spend more time this term on discussing the 4-4-1 program. The members of the previous group believed that the program was a help rather than a hindrance, because it forced them to keep at their studies, as their classes met more often.

Wessman is continuing the group counseling program this term, but hopes to add individual counseling for those students whose problems should not be discussed in group sessions but in individual conferences.

When evaluating last term's program, the students agreed that they found the meetings interesting and helpful. As one male senior said, "I became aware of just what academic probation was and how I could get off of it."

Wessman added, "The meetings helped to create an intellectual awareness. Students began to shoot for A's and B's, rather than C's and D's."

He feels that putting students on probation is somewhat a threat approach, and that it is just a way of "trying to use an academic solution to a non-academic problem."

Wessman hopes to establish "a community of helping each other." He believes that the student should not feel a sense of isolationism just because he is on academic probation.

One senior boy commented, "After receiving the letter asking me to come to the group sessions, I didn't know what to think. At first I thought it would be just Mickey Mouse stuff, but the meetings weren't that way at all.

"I also expected Mr. Wessman to present the information, and the students would just listen, but it was almost the opposite."

Wessman added, "I wanted the students to assume the responsibility of leadership. I also might add that the students did this very well."

A male senior ended the discussion by saying, "I think all students on Academic Probation should come to at least two of the meetings, just to see what's involved. I really found them interesting and helpful."

Social Work Majors Practice At Waterloo, Waverly Agencies

By ROLANDA BASLER

Thirty-three social work majors have had or will be doing their field work experience in 11 agencies or settings, according to Mrs. Ruth McKinnis, of the social work department.

"Field experience in the social work department is designed to give the student an opportunity to relate his classroom knowledge about social work, its goals, operations and problems to an experience in a social work agency," she said.

She added that social work classes deal mainly with theory so that the field experience gives the students the opportunity to achieve greater understanding of the field and assess their interest for social work as a career.

Students Spend Hours

The students receiving their field experience spend four hours per week at the agency and attend a two-hour weekly seminar on campus. The grade received for the course is shared between the agency and the college.

The supervisor will recommend a grade, but the final grade will be based on this and the work done in the seminar.

"The student will be graded on how he is able to integrate his knowledge and material learned, the application of his knowledge and his awareness of himself in the profession," Mrs. McKinnis explained.

Will Discuss Progress

"I will go to the agency to discuss the student's progress and review the agency records that he has kept," she added.

Late in February both Mrs. McKinnis and Mrs. Lola Reppert, chairman of the department, will meet with all the agency heads to discuss the field experience.

The agencies that are involved in the program are located in Waverly and Waterloo.

Four students, Lynn Gertsch, Mary Smith, Kay Biederman and Bonnie Simpson, worked at the Lutheran Social Service, a private agency that serves unmarried parents with counseling and guidance.

Works With Children

Working with the children at the Lutheran Children's Home were Linda Fritschel, Mary Peterson, Carol Vertrees, Margaret Christensen, Jo Ann Lembke and Lawrence Englund. This agency is a treatment center for emotionally disturbed children.

Jane Vagts, Kathy Fliehler and Elizabeth Luckey received their field experience at the Black Hawk County Mental Health Center. Luther Ahrens, Linda Wuertz, Rhonda Swenson, Jan Wallace and Alan Hanson worked at the Cedar Valley Mental Health Center.

Both of these agencies deal with the emotional problems of children and adults.

Working with the Board of Control in Waterloo were Lance Gordon, Loren Fjone and Luana West. This is a district office of the Children's Division of Iowa, which works with children who are on parole.

Alice Hall, Barbara Rounds, Marjorie Sauer and Louise Anderson are working with the Black Hawk County Welfare, a public agency dealing with the problems of income maintenance as provided for under the Social Security Act.

Diane Shevey is working with the Black Hawk Community Action Council, an agency set up to implement the philosophy of the Economic Opportunities Act, known as the War on Poverty.

Three students worked with the Exceptional Persons, Inc., a community organization which plans, coordinates and educates the community in regard to problems involved with mental retardation. These students were Glenn Oshiro, Mary Peterson and Sally Crawford.

Will Work With Unwed

Jeannie Coolon and Jolene Willer will be working with unwed mothers at the Catholic Charities, a private adoption agency serving unwed mothers and providing counseling and guidance.

Gary Blumanthal is working with the Family Service League, which provides primary services for couples who are experiencing marital incompatibility.

Gary Williams is receiving his field experience at the Young Men's Christian Association, an agency which provides recreational and spiritual guidance through group work activities.

Social Work majors will also be doing extended field experience during the May Term. These students will spend seven hours in the agency and two hours in a seminar on campus.

During this term six will go to Independence to work at the Mental Health Center, six to the Training school for boys at Eldora and one to the Wormley Children's Home in Richmond, Va.

Ceramic Pottery To Be Exhibited

NEWS BUREAU--A one-man Ceramic Pottery exhibition has been scheduled by Wartburg College's Art Department, beginning Feb. 6.

To run two weeks, the show will feature work by John Brandt, who is currently elementary art coordinator for the Cedar Falls public schools and a graduate student in ceramics at the University of Northern Iowa.

The pottery will be placed in three locations on campus: the Homuth Memorial Library, the Fine Arts Center and the conference room of the Student Memorial Union.

It may be viewed daily from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the library and FAC and from 10 a.m. until 12 noon and 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. in the Union conference room.

Charles Frelund, chairman of Wartburg's Art Department, says there will be no formal opening for this exhibition.

Special Meeting Is Next Week

PROBE, a meeting to explore the ideas that have been developing in the minds of our faculty, has been tentatively scheduled for 10 a.m. sometime next week.

The meeting will take place in the auxiliary conference room and is open to anyone interested.

Noted Scientist Visits Campus

NEWS BUREAU--A noted astronomer from the University of Arizona served as a visiting professor of astronomy at Wartburg College Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

Dr. Elizabeth Roemer, who has had an asteroid named after her, gave lectures to classes in physical science and consulted with students interested in a career in astronomy.

Her stay here was sponsored by the Program of Visiting Professors in Astronomy of the American Astronomical Society and the National Science Foundation.

In addition to her teaching duties, Dr. Roemer is continuing her study of comets, minor planets and faint natural satellites of the planets at the observational facilities of the Catalina Station of the Lunar and Planetary Laboratory.

She was an astronomer for the U. S. Naval Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., for nine years before accepting her present position at Tucson in 1966.

Dr. Roemer received a "Mademoiselle" magazine Merit Award in 1959 for her work in astronomy.

Two Teachers Earn Degrees

NEWS BUREAU--Two Wartburg College music faculty members have completed requirements for advanced degrees.

They are C. Robert Larson, who received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Iowa at mid-winter commencement today, and Mrs. Jean Madsen, who was awarded her Master of Arts degree by the University of Northern Iowa Jan. 24.

Larson's doctoral dissertation was a study of "The History of Swedish Solo Song."

Both teach voice in the Wartburg music department.

Wartburg Is Inducted In Area Community Study

An area-community study has been set up, involving an eight-county area in which Wartburg College is centrally located, according to Al Disrud, director of community relations.

Purpose of the study is to develop a program of informal education that:

1. Will promote a sense of interrelatedness between the different communities.

2. Will develop within the area - community citizens and leaders who have the knowledge, skill, competency and attitudes necessary to realize the potential of an area-community.

3. Will encourage congregations and their pastors to teach people that the motivation for the building of quality community is inherent in the Christian Faith. The methods and the patterns to be used are a matter of judgment.

The study is partly sponsored by LCUSA (Lutheran Council of the USA) with funds and with professional guidance particularly in the area of inter-communion planning by churches in the eight county area-community.

Disrud will conduct the study with guidance from a faculty committee including the Rev. Ralph Wedeking and Dr. Lyle E. Blaede, Sociology Department; Dr. P. A. Kildahl, English Department; Franklin Williams, Music Department; John W. Kurtt, Physical Education Department; Dr. Mahlon Hellerich, dean of faculty; and Dr. John W. Bachman, Wartburg president.

The committee plans to carry out the study in cooperation with the University of Northern Iowa, Upper Iowa College, Iowa State University and the University of Iowa.

Listening Witness Program Employs Many Students

Distinguishing aspect of the "Listening Witness" program, according to sophomore Christy Fossum, who participated last summer, is the fact that members are employed full-time in Chicago while they are there and do social work on weekends.

Thus, students who cannot afford to be unemployed during the summer but who still would like to help others less fortunate than they in the inner city can accomplish both these objectives.

The program, originated by the Lutheran Church, is now cross - denominational and has moved more to individual campus groups. The membership, according to Christy, consists of approximately twenty from Wartburg, others from Drake University and some high school students.

Wage Scale Given

Wage scale paid on the various jobs which the members hold in Chicago during the summer, she said, ranges from $2 to $2.75 an hour for women and $2.50 to $3.50 an hour for men.

She added, however, that there might be need for a personal employment interview in Chicago for certain jobs.

Training sessions or seminars for the group are held on three different weekends. The first has already been held. The next will be Feb. 16 to 18 in Waverly.

Four Chicago ministers, Pastors Bruce Johnson and Jim Reid, who were in charge of last year's group, and Pastor Dick Matteson and Miss Pearl Seale, in charge of this year's group, will speak on the subject of "Urban Revolution."

The third and last weekend training session will be March 20 to 31. The theme will be "Imaginal Education." Miss Fossum commented that this is a method of education particularly effective in the inner city, since it is not limited to the classroom.

Courses Feature Theology

She added that there are also study courses between the weekend seminars which feature a "new kind of theology." It is taught by members of the program and is especially useful in inner city work.

The four locations for these groups in Chicago, she said, are Settlement House -- which features gym and playground instruction for the underprivileged, along with tutoring and special classes for adults--Circle Campus, a "store - front coffee house," and a fourth location, which was undisclosed.

Being Housemother Is 'Great' But Has To Draw The Line

By MARTHA MOORE

by martna moore. . .

The old woman in the shoe may not have agreed, but Mrs. Florence Hutson thinks being mother to 234 boys is "great!"

Sitting in her neat apartment, Clinton Hall's head resident discussed her work. She says a housemother has to learn where to draw the line.

"Boys don't want to be nagged at continuously, but they don't want to get away with everything."

Sometimes she finds herself discouraged about things that happen. She says she wonders where she fails and what can be done differently the next time.

Mrs. Hutson enjoys having the boys drop in when they feel like talking about problems.

"I probably can't give them answers, but I listen."

Knock Interrupts

A knock on the door interrupted her conversation at this moment. After making change for a Clinton student, she discussed her attitude toward room inspection, which she does once a week.

"The boys probably think I'm a crank about neatness and noise!" she commented.

Regarding unusual occurrences, Mrs. Hutson cites an incident last year when, looking out her window, she noticed "flaming things" being thrown from a window above. She inquired upstairs and was told that someone had thrown a burning box of Kleenex out.

"I told them to put it out. I guess I must have looked pretty mad, because one fellow ran outside barefoot and stepped on it!"

Is From Illinois

Mrs. Hutson is originally from Sibley, Ill. Dean Oppermann, knowing that she was looking for employment, contacted her in California, where she was vacationing, to offer her the job.

She had considered such work before and decided to accept. She had earlier Wartburg connections, too. Her son, a Wartburg graduate, lived in Clinton Hall for three years.

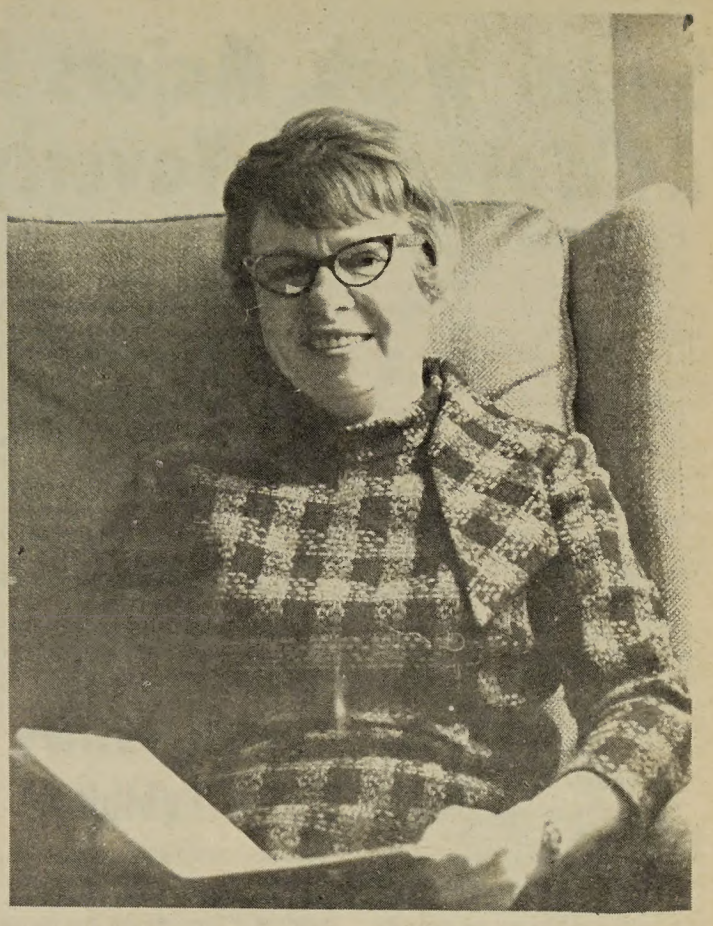
Another knock on the door sent her off on an errand momentarily.

In speaking of a typical day for her, she laughed, "This! The boys come asking for things like room keys. And I make a lot of change in a day!

"I know most of the boys' names, all of them by sight. If they're never in their rooms during check, and I don't hear them called by name, it's hard to remember."

A third knock interrupted her. Someone had been locked out and needed a key.

"Most of the boys call me Mom," she said. "There's never a dull moment here!"



Mrs. Florence Hutson, Clinton Hall's head resident, relaxes--momentarily. "There's never a dull moment," she says. "It's great!"

Publications Are Cited

NEWS BUREAU--Two Wartburg College publications have been cited by the Mid-America District of the American College Public Relations Association.

A panel of judges gave a first place for "Wartburg? What's That?" and a third for the college's fall sports pressbook.

"Wartburg? What's That?" traces the historical heritage of the Wartburg Castle in Germany and its relationship to Wartburg College.

The two publications were submitted in competition with publications from colleges and universities in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Missouri and Oklahoma.

Duane Schroeder, Wartburg director of public information, prepared both pieces.

Deuce's Wild
Has Puzzled Look

By RAY NARDUCY

I never thought it would last this long, but it has.

As I approached the library a couple of days ago, I found Joe Collegiate at the foot of the steps (right near the big toe). He had a puzzled look on his face. I was surprised to see him this close to the library. I didn't know that he knew where the library was at.

Narducy

"Hi, Joe. What's new?"

"Hi, Ferris." (He always thought of me as a big wheel.) "Nothing much here."

"Why are you standing out here in this beautiful Iowa blizzard? Waiting for a dog sled run?"

"No, I'm trying to decide whether or not I should go to the library."

* * * * *

"Afraid it would ruin your image?"

"You hit it on the head. I have never been to the library in my seven years here. I just don't know if it is worth sacrificing all that I have worked for just for the sake of my education."

"I don't quite follow you."

"If I go in there, my friends will say that I am trying to think. That I am trying to get into Alpha Chi. The girls I date will think that I am too intellectual. My drinking friends will probably stop having binges with me.

"And then there will be no more destroying peace and other people's property. It won't be fun anymore. Probably some low-down thing will say that I am trying to get an education. How can people be so cruel! All I want is a two-page book report."

* * * * *

"I think I begin to see your point. What you need to do is try to sleep it off. Go to bed. I am sure this desire to enter the library will pass."

"I'll try that. Wait! I have an idea. I think I remember once when we were really plowed, one of my friends confessed that he had written a book report.

"He didn't turn it in as he cut that day to tie the campus record of most cuts in that class. I bet I can get that one and turn it in. My college career has been saved."

And with that, he lurched away.

As I entered the library, I tripped. I looked down and I had tripped over part of a bed. Up the stairs from the basement, Joe Collegiate, a distant relative of Joe College, came and picked up the piece of bed and carried it down the stairs.

I followed him and was amazed to find that he had his entire bedroom downstairs in the faculty men's restroom. Well, at least, that room is going to get used, I thought.

I grabbed Joe as he went by. "Time out! What's the deal here? Why the set up with the bed?"

"I moved out of the dorm and in here. I need the time I spent in the dorm to study."

"Wait. You moved out of the dorm and are now living in the library?"

* * * * *

"Yeah. I had to. I need to keep my 3.7 grade point up there or I will feel that I have accomplished nothing."

"OK, why did you move out of the dorm? Really? Why?"

"All they ever want to do in the dorm is have fun, talk, watch TV, play records and have water fights. I need all my time to study."

"Well, some guys study in the dorm, don't they?"

* * * * *

"Yeah, but the problem is they are too friendly. It takes away from studying when you have to talk to people. I can see talking to your roommate like asking him for a pencil or an assignment, but that's about it.

"Look, you will have to excuse me. I have to get a seventeen-page book report done and the library closes in nine short hours."

And with that he scurried away.

I would like to say that I am extremely displeased with the record of the basketball team so far. If they had lost a few like they should have, we wouldn't have this problem with the tickets.

I think it is downright shameful of those guys not to think about this before they streak off a record like they got. Thanks a lot, fellows.

Keep in touch.

Wartburg Grant Has Approval

Preliminary approval has been given for a grant of $25,000 to Wartburg College through the Higher Education Commission of the State of Iowa. Most of the money will be used for the planetarium in Becker Hall of Science in addition to $25,000 pledged by the Castle Club.

This approval was received last week by President Bachman in a letter from Roy Wellborne, executive director of the commission. The money is granted from federal funds through a request under the title of laboratory and other special equipment.

William Penn, Drake and Wartburg are the three schools to receive the maximum under this division.

A Medical Answer For MUSCULAR
Low Back Pain

Promptly Relieves Pain
So Stiff Muscles Loosen Up and
You're Back Into Action

DOCTORS who specialize in back troubles report most aching backs are due to weak, tense muscles which can go into painful spasm as you suddenly bend, stretch or twist. To relieve such backache doctors recommend the pain-relief compound in Anacin® Analgesic Tablets. And Anacin gives you more of this medication than any other leading tablet.

Anacin is a special fortified formula. It promptly relieves pain, helps reduce swollen tissues, and so releases pressure on sensitive back nerves. Then notice how stiff muscles loosen up and you move around with greater ease.

Only Anacin has this special fortified formula. It's not found in any other product. See if Anacin's exclusive formula doesn't work better for you.
